

Profiling the Customer Clusters

Four distinct shopper segments — each with unique household profiles, income levels, and buying behaviors. Tailored strategies unlock maximum engagement and loyalty.

Four Clusters, Four Strategies

Cluster 0

Older parents, families of 2–4, often with teenagers. Single parents included.

Cluster 1

Younger parents, families up to 3, typically one young child.

Cluster 2

Non-parents, up to 2 members, couples or singles, high-income.

Cluster 3

Older parents, families of 2–5, teenagers at home, lower-income.

The Older Family Household

Who They Are

- Definitely a parent — single or partnered
- Family size: 2 to 4 members
- Most have a teenager at home
- Relatively older demographic

What Drives Them

Busy parents juggling time and budget. Convenience and value are top priorities. They respond well to practical deals on everyday essentials.

Convenience & Family Value Packs

Multi-Buy Discounts

"Buy 2, Get 1 Free" on cereals, snacks, and cleaning supplies — household staples this segment buys regularly.

Ready-Made Meal Solutions

Promote meal kits designed for 3–4 people to save busy parents time and simplify dinner planning.

Traditional + Digital Channels

Use flyers and newspaper inserts alongside digital ads, reflecting their older media habits.

The Younger Parent Family

Who They Are

- Majority are parents
- Family size: up to 3 members
- Typically one young child (not a teenager)
- Relatively younger demographic

What Drives Them

Child-centric, quality-focused, and digitally engaged. They prioritize fresh, healthy options for their little ones and expect a seamless shopping experience.

Child-Centric, Premium & Easy

Fresh & Organic Focus

Highlight fresh produce and organic baby/toddler items. Health-conscious parents want the best for their children.

Social & App Campaigns

Run targeted social media ads and app-based personalized coupons for specific baby and toddler brands.

In-Store Family Experience

Offer "kids eat free" samples and designated family-friendly parking to make shopping enjoyable.

CLUSTER 2

The High-Income Non-Parent

Who They Are

Not a parent. Household of 1–2. Slight majority are couples. Spans all ages. High-income group.

What Drives Them

Quality over price. They seek premium, specialty, and gourmet experiences. Unique products and exclusivity resonate more than discounts.

Premium, Specialty & Gourmet

→ High-End Product Promotion

Promote premium cuts of meat, imported cheeses, fine wines, and international specialty foods.

→ Elegant Email Newsletters

Use magazine-style email campaigns to feature new, exclusive products with aspirational imagery.

→ Premium Bundle Kits

Create curated experiences like "Gourmet Pasta Night" — emphasize quality, not savings.

The Budget-Conscious Large Family

Who They Are

- Definitely a parent
- Family size: 2 to 5 members
- Majority have a teenager at home
- Relatively older, lower-income

What Drives Them

Maximizing every dollar. Bulk buying, store brands, and loyalty rewards are powerful motivators. Weekly circulars drive their shopping decisions.

Maximize Savings & Volume Discounts

Store-Brand Focus

Prioritize private-label products across all categories for the best value proposition.

Bulk & Family Sizes

Promote large-format options and publicize weekly circular sales heavily to drive foot traffic.

High-Value Loyalty Program

Offer high-value points or immediate cash-off rewards to drive repeat visits based on cost savings.

Key Takeaway: Each cluster demands a distinct approach — from gourmet experiences for Cluster 2 to bulk savings for Cluster 3. One-size-fits-all marketing leaves money on the table.
